

Resources for Arts Education (For non-NYCDOE schools, organizations, individuals)

OASP supports increased quality in the arts through the development of curriculum and professional development for teachers of visual art, music, dance and theater under the direction of four highly qualified directors, one for each art form. These directors, along with their partners from the cultural community, have developed the Blueprint for Teaching and Learning in the Arts, PreK-12, which outlines what students should know and be able to do in the arts at benchmark grade levels.

The Blueprint not only provides teachers with a path to follow that helps them to determine the work they should be doing in each art form, it also indicates what children should know and be able to do in the arts at critical junctures in their intellectual, physical, and emotional development. The Blueprint also provides school administrators with tools to appropriately supervise arts teachers as well as to recognize and share with parents the potential their children have for achievement in the arts. Additional resources are available for school leaders and arts education directors.
